

Social Justice for

underserved groups of women, youths, and children enjoy improved quality of lives and are active members in community decision making process for equitable socio-economic and rights-base status – free from all forms of violence.

Economically thriving communities and vibrant livelihood achieved	Inclusive and responsive public sector towards the development of civic rights of marginalized groups	Overall community and institutional rejection of social injustice	underserved groups safely access adequate and appropriate support services for wellbeing and development

Higher proportion of underserved groups become economically empowered, skilled, & educated on their rights.	More safe spaces within communities for freedom of expression and participation	More media reporting & transparency on social injustice issues	CSOs are equipped to tangibly advocate for access to right-based services for underserved groups.	Stronger commitment from policymakers to structural and institutional changes to address social injustice

Build capacities to improve socioeconomic outcomes in line with the UN SGDs	Engage in policies, programs, and agencies advocacy (PPAs) to address core issues for underserved groups	Enable provision of comprehensive public wellbeing services through research and evidence generation (e.g., health, social welfare, legal, safety)

Build literacy/empowerment skills and education about civic rights	Strengthen media reporting capacity on social injustices towards women, youths, and children	Support capacity of civil society organizations (CSOs) efforts to create change sustainably	Engage stakeholders on right-based policies and programs that are inimical to societal development
